Advanced
CDN provider: jsDelivr, 3.3.7

NOTE: Using one of the "CDN Provider" options below is the preferred method for loading Bootstrap CSS and JS on simpler sites that do not use a site-wide CDN. Using a "CDN Provider" for loading Bootstrap, however, does mean that it depends on a third-party service. There is no obligation or commitment by these third-parties that guarantees any up-time or service quality. If you need to customize Bootstrap and have chosen to compile the source code locally (served from this site), you must disable the "CDN Provider" option below by choosing "- None -" and alternatively enable a site-wide CDN implementation. All local (served from this site) versions of Bootstrap will be superseded by any enabled "CDN Provider" below. Do not do both.

CDN Provider
jsDelivr

jsDELIVR

jsDelivr is a free multi-CDN infrastructure that uses MaxCDN, Cloudflare and many others to combine their powers for the good of the open source community... read more

Version
3.3.7

These versions are automatically populated by the jsDelivr API upon cache clear and newer versions may appear over time. It is highly recommended the version that the site was built with stays at that version. Until a newer version has been properly tested for updatability by the site maintainer, you should not arbitrarily "update" just because there is a newer version. This can cause many inconsistencies and undesired effects with an existing site.

Theme
Bootstrap (default)
